Has been Accredited High School For More Than 25 Years

GRADUATES WILL HEAR REV. KEISTER

Baccalaureate Plans Outlined At Meeting of Education Board

Salem High school again has been unqualifiedly recommended as an accredited school by the North Central association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, according to an announcement today by Superintendent E. S. Kerr.

For more than 25 years the Salem High school has received the official sanction of the association which comprises institutions in 21 states and is linked with groups in other sections of the country.

Full Credit For Students
Credit from the association means that the Quaker students may transfer to any accredited school in the 21 states and it graduates may enter any college in the section with full credit for their study here.

Superintendent Kerr was notified of the renewal of the high school's standing following the annual meeting of the North Central group in Chicago recently. The notification came from Joseph W. Fichter, assistant director of the Ohio department of education.

The board of education, meeting Monday night in the high school, announced that the annual baccalaureate service June 2, has been placed in charge of the Ministerial association.

Rev. George D. Keister, pastor of the English Lutheran church, and president of the association, will deliver the message.

The student commencement speakers have chosen "Three Hundred Years of American High School" as a central theme for graduation. This season marks the 300th anniversary of the founding of high schools in America.

Massillon Choir Here
The Massillon High school a capella choir will sing at the graduation exercises of the local high school June 2. The school board unanimously approved extending an invitation to the Massillon school choir, which already has expressed a desire to sing here.

Plans were submitted at the board meeting for modernizing the heating plant of the Fourth Street school building as an FERA project. No action was taken by the board on the proposal, however, but the plan is held in readiness. The heating job, which would include complete ventilating system, would call for an expenditure of $17,423 for materials and $1,000 for labor, a total of $18,423. The plans were submitted to the board by Superintendent Kerr in conjunction with other suggested improvements at the Fourth Street school.

The board, in adjourning, granted the use of the high school auditorium for a National Music week program tonight and the community band concert on Thursday of this week.

Jolson and Ruby Adopt Infant Boy

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, May 7.—It's a boy in the Al Jolson-Ruby Keeler home.

Miss Keeler, motion picture actress and wife of the stage and screen comedian, appeared at the Cook county building today and filed papers for the adoption of a seven weeks old baby boy from the cradle, in suburban Evanston.

The prospective foster-parent, accompanied by her attorney, left the building without disclosing what went awry with her announced plan of adopting twins—a boy for Jolson and a girl for herself.

Decision Of Supreme Court On Pension Law Casts Doubt On NRA and Social Security

High Administration Leaders Indicate Latter Bill May Be Revamped; Railroads Prepare To Pay Back Funds To Employees

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 7.—New deal lawyers embarked today upon a detailed study of the supreme court's rail pension decision to determine whether it had dealt a body blow to NRA and the Roosevelt social security program.

The Aftermath
The aftermath of the 5 to 4 ruling wiping the giant pension plan off the law books found:

1. Some NRA officials saying that a reading of newspaper summaries indicated to them that the court majority had frowned on the relatively wide interpretation of interstate commerce on which NRA is based. They said closer study might change this view.

2. High administration leaders indicated that the social security bill now in committee in the senate, might be revamped in the light of the new ruling.

The rail pension act, under which roads and employees were called upon to make compulsory contributions to pension workers at the age of 65, was declared unconstitutional on two principal grounds:

That forcing a railroad to contribute to a pool from which pensions for employees of all roads would be paid deprived it of property without due process of law; and that the "social purpose" of the bill was unrelated to efficiency and safety of operation and thus were not sustained by the constitutional provision giving congress power over interstate commerce.

Foreclose Further Legislation
Several senate legal authorities said the decision foreclosed any further legislation for railroad pensions at least as long as the supreme court membership remains unchanged.

They were not certain, pending further study, what the effect on NRA and the security bill might be.

After a hurried reading of the decision, Senator Borah (R., Idaho) widely known as a constitutional expert, said it "settles that particular case, but it is not much of a guide for congress."

"I do not regard these 5 to 4 decisions important when it comes to determining national policy," he said.

Despite the views of Chief Justice Hughes and several senators that the decision closed the door to any railway pension legislation, Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) and A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, said new legislation would be sought.

The million railroad employees whom the bill affected soon will receive a refund of approximately $22,500,000 reduced from their salaries since August 1.

Will Return Money
Under the law, the railroads were required to hold two per cent of each employee's salary up to $300 a month, to be matched with a four per cent contribution by the carriers. The money with interest, will be returned as fast as possible, the Association of American Railroads said.

The railroad retirement pension board, which has functioned with a skeleton organization of about 20 employees, prepared to wind up its affairs.

Senators would not venture any opinion as to the effect on NRA legislation. The supreme court already has under advisement the Schechter poultry case involving the constitutionality code regulation of industry. A bill before the senate would extend the life of the blue eagle until next April, with modifying provisions exempting intra-state business from codes and eliminating virtually all price-fixing.

Pickrel Named As Bank Liquidator
COLUMBUS, May 7.—W. Paul Wagner, state superintendent of Building and Loan association, appointed William G. Pickrel, former lieutenant governor, a deputy superintendent today in charge of the liquidation of eight Building and Loan associations in the Dayton area. Pickrel last year was an opponent of Martin L. Davey for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Pickrel will succeed Corwin A. Fergus, who resigned in February to take a position with the Home Loan Corporation.

Political observers interpreted the appointment as virtually eliminating Pickrel from the Democratic primary race next year when Davey would run for re-nomination. At a recent Democratic rally in Steubenville, Pickrel spoke words of praise for the governor.

Program Outlined By Young People
Plans were made for the summer program of young people's work at the district cabinet meeting of the Methodist church held last night in Steubenville.

Rev. H. J. Thompson attended as a representative from the Salem church. The cabinet convention will be held June 13-14 at Carrollton, O.

KIN OF FAMOUS ARTIST PERISH AS HOME BURNS

Four Meet Death As Fire Sweeps LaValle Boston Residence

MOTHER, DAUGHTER DIE IN FLAMES

Socially Prominent Painter and Wife Absent At Time

(By Associated Press)
BOSTON, May 7.—Four persons including the mother and 14-year-old daughter of John LaValle, internationally known portrait painter, were burned to death or killed in leaps as fire swept the artist's home today. Seven other persons were injured.

The Dead
Mrs. John LaValle, 70, crippled mother of the artist, burned to death in her bed.

Alice LaValle, 14, daughter of John LaValle, burned to death. Body found in debris after collapse of fourth floor.

Miss Mary Dolan, 24, maid in LaValle home, killed in leap from fourth floor.

Miss Kathleen Costello, 25, killed in fourth floor leap.

The Injured
Ellen Elaine, 6, daughter of LaValle, slight internal injury, severe burns.

Mary Dean, 13, daughter of LaValle, internal injuries and severe burns.

Mary McLeod, nurse of Mrs. LaValle, Sr., burns on back, shock, back injuries.

Fireman William Hayhurst, severe cuts and bruises; Lieut. Charles O'Brien, fractured leg; Ladderman John Murphy, smoke inhalation and burns.

Also injured was Molly O'Reilly, 25, cook, who escaped the flames, but suffered from smoke inhalation.

The fire occurred in the absence of the socially prominent artist and his second wife, the former Virginia Wilson of Cincinnati, daughter of Robert Wilson, tobacco-trade multi-millionaire.

Starting from an undetermined cause, apparently at the bottom of a dumb-waiter shaft in the four-story brick residence in the Back Bay district, the fire mushroomed up through the house, trapping the sleeping household on the two upper floors.

The county general fund has received a credit of $2,977.64.

Distribution of the sales tax to school districts is forwarded direct from Columbiana, therefore such transactions do not pass through the auditor's office here.

House Tax Committee Reminds Davey of Economy Pledge

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, May 7.—Governor Davey, in a message to the legislature today, took issue with persons who contended old age pensions for the last half of the year could be financed from the general revenue fund, and asserted there is "no alternative to the levying of a special temporary tax" to meet the payments.

Secretary of State George S. Myers recently asserted that if the general budget were reduced a flat 10 per cent, sufficient funds would be available to meet pensions during the last six months of 1935.</

Wherever there is conversation, sooner or later it turns to the possibilities of a third party in 1936. That is the favorite subject of political speculation.

Right wing and left wing third parties both get attention. The first one gets no serious attention from politicians, because they believe it is impossible. The second they believe improbable.

Parties are bigger than men, despite the imprint men leave on parties. Right wing Democrats may not like President Roosevelt, but anyone who thinks they might scuttle the party in an attempt to take out their spite on its temporary leader is guilty of dabbling in fancy. It is simply not logical that dissatisfied Democrats try to embarrass Mr. Roosevelt with a right wing party.

A left wing party, of course, is possible. Under present circumstances it is not probable, however. There is more entailed in organizing a third party movement than is commonly realized. Money is essential. In order to do a good job, organizers must be able to hold out hope of patronage. Significantly, no one is talking about a third party electing its candidate in 1936, but only about the possibility it might out vote support from under President Roosevelt's feet.

Wishing does not create third parties. It only creates the conversation which makes them seem more important than they usually turn out to be. Republicans, for instance, dream vocally of a third party candidate who would split the President's majority and let their own candidate slip through to undeserved victory. Yet, they fail to specify what candidate would be able to do it. Does anyone seriously believe Sen. Huey Long, in an actual showdown, would be able to affect a presidential vote sufficiently to defeat Franklin D. Roosevelt? Talking about the Louisiana opportunist is one thing; voting for him would be something entirely different. Strongest of the third party possibilities he is at best a remote possibility as a really important factor in 1936.

THE WEEKEND TOLL

The weekend automobile traffic toll was unusually heavy over the state and especially marked in the Salem district, where one death occurred.

City police and state highway patrolmen were kept on the jump Saturday and Sunday as casualty calls filtered into their offices like reports from a war-time battlefield and auto wreckers were on the move almost continuously.

Why? Well, it seems that some motorists who are the very epitome of kindness, courtesy and generosity when they are their "normal selves" lose all sense of these attributes when they climb behind the wheel of an automobile, step on the starter and dart down the highway with a determination to hold the road at any and all costs.

The great urge seems to be to get ahead of the other fellow, crowd him out, don't let him beat you to the light, and if someone happens to be walking across the street when you turn right or left, make him jump. Courtesy and automobile driving, in many instances, seem to be as far apart as the poles.

One bright spot in the weekend holocaust was provided by Dan Boderna, crossing watchman at the West State at Pennsylvania railroad tracks.

Two automobiles crashed on the crossing, leaving car wreckage and the body of one of the occupants on the rails. Boderna flagged down a Cleveland-Pittsburgh passenger train before it could add to the complications. That was Boderna's job, but he was on the job.

THE STARS SAY

For Wednesday, May 8

According to the lunar transit bearing influence on the affairs of this day, there may be some rather lively and interesting conditions in business and home contacts. But, at the same time, delays, trivial disappointments and vexations are indicated. The health may be at the root of such frustrating circumstances.

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly lively and interesting year, but one beset with small annoyances. Safeguard the health and be wary of trivial spites, enmities and intrigues.

A child born on this day may be versatile and clever in both business and cultural qualities. It may have a studious bent which at times may seem to incite gloomy or melancholy behavior.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, May 7.—Brook Pemberton has come under the wire with another hit—the second of the season. He has been the most successful of the time-bidders, often going through several sabbatical years, seemingly doing nothing but sitting around a rather dingy office with his feet on a desk.

Yet this is unconscious camouflage. Where so many others rush in pell-mell, he waits for an idea to bloom. One of the theater's shrewdest and most studious observers, his castings have shown uncanny judgment. The majority of his successes are brought about by his selection of obscure players.

Few had heard of Gladys George until he salvaged her from stock to be the bright particular star of "Personal Appearance." Time after time he has figuratively picked them out of the air. Unsmiling, ungrateful-eyed, he is in some ways the Rialto's current Gloomie Gus.

Member of a distinguished Kansas family, he began as a newspaperman in Emporia, migrating in easy journalistic stages to New York. His first theatrical venture, "Enter Madame," established him, and his failures have been few. He is the calmest person in the audience at his own first nights.

When Sam Byrd grows too jittery from his 600 sabbatical and slattern nights of turnip eating in "Tobacco Road" he gets hold of himself by hopping a train for several hours of window looking. He buys a round trip to some point in Jersey or Long Island, acquires a window view and returns refreshed and ready for more turnips. He has to devour two, full sized, at each performance. Dipsyheads see him and flutter into the ork-orks.

And many cannot enjoy the skill of Cardini, the Inverness caped illusionist, because of a foreboding he is shortening his career by incessantly smoking the lighted cigarettes he plucks from the air. At four performances a day he fairly eats them up in deep inhalations, averaging from 20 to 30 at each show. There are times, too, when he plays two additional night clubs. Then there's doubtless his home-work smoking.

Dobby Clark gives Frisco a close race for the cigar consuming championship. He burns up a half dozen each performance, aside from being a steady smoker off stage. But Frisco lights a cigar upon awakening and is never without one, even puffing furiously through his meals, until he turns off the light at night.

Manhattan's most famous scenic view has become that vista of the Washington Bridge from the Riverside upswamp known as Inspiration Point. It is especially breath-taking just before the sun, hanging like a sullen red ball, dips behind the golden crumple of the Jersey horizon. The dark damson blue of the Hudson gallantly catches the sparkling salute of a dying day. Over it all the one-span bridge arches gauzy tracery in silhouette—like a painter's final stroke that so often proclaims the masterpiece. Every sundown much of the available space is taken by pausing motorists who take on a quiet withdrawn air. A dozen or so painters are at their easels trying to imprison the majesty of it all on canvas. One thinks of Skippy's immortal burst at a similar arcadia when he exclaimed, "Jiminy, it's so beautiful I could bust somebody in the eye!"

Jacobs, the wayside photographer for more than 30 years along upper Riverside Drive, is again at his old post. All day long in fair weather he stands under a spreading tree. Only his camera on a tripod indicates his calling. He never solicits, yet he has made a good living and purchased a home. Pulpiters casting about for a sermon topic might find one on faith from this humble citizen by the side of the road.

I visited a Chinese laundry far west on 34th st the other day. The age-old Chinese diffidence to change prevailed. Shirts are still sprinkled with sudden jabal pasts, and the yellow claim checks hung on a wall nail. That unforgettable aroma, the odor of old fungi in an abandoned tomb, was the same, too. Our old Sam Lee with a pigtail, however, had become young Fong with a feather-edge hair cut. I prefaced a few inquiries I wanted to make with: "I'm a newspaperman." He beamed pleasantly: "I have taken a course in journalism myself." So, as Harry Silvey would say, we talked and talked and one thing led to another. But somehow I felt gosh-awful silly.

The British Empire, particularly England, is celebrating the 25th anniversary of the ascendancy of George V to the throne. He succeeded his father, Edward VII, on the latter's death May 6, 1910. YOU'RE HAPPY WHEN YOU'RE FIT Think back over the last month. The days you enjoyed most were the days you felt in great shape. Increase these sunny days by keeping fit.

Avoid common constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. It may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy. It dulls your enthusiasm, takes the fun out of living.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes you with "bulk" in convenient form. ALL-BRAN also provides vitamin B and iron. This gentle natural food is much better than patent medicines. Unlike cathartics, it remains effective with continued use.

Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

Cancer Curable if Noted Early

One of the most important of governmental bureaus is that devoted to vital statistics. It gives us an index of what is happening to the health of the people. For example, the New York state department of health recently announced an increase in deaths from cancer in that state. More than 17,000 New York inhabitants died from this dread disease during 1934.

It would appear that the cases of cancer are increasing. Yet, if everyone were more familiar with the symptoms of the disease, it would be discovered in the early stages when cure is nearly always possible. Statistics show that the death rate from cancer is higher among women than men. This is easily explained because there are certain types of cancer to which only women are subject.

Common Form
I want to speak of a very common form of cancer, cancer of the breast. This is found in women of all ages, especially those who have borne children. The nursing mother is often subject to inflammations and infections of the breast which clear up after the child is weaned. But if for any reason such soreness does not disappear, it is wise to consult the doctor and follow his advice carefully. Any disturbance in the breast indicates the need for immediate medical advice. If this were asked for and given the number of cases of cancer would be greatly reduced.

Do not neglect any growth, swelling, pain or discomfort of the breast. If there should be any indication of a growth, and the doctor advises an operation, do not delay. The dangers of cancer and its spread are checked when the growth is completely removed. A simple incision may be sufficient to remove it unless the growth has spread and then it may be necessary to remove the entire breast. Such operations are often followed by x-ray treatment. Your own doctor will advise you about this.

Do not get the idea that pain in the breast means cancer. This is not always the case by any means. Cancer of the breast may exist for a time without any pain or discomfort. Pain in the breast may be due to congestion or it may accompany some menstrual disturbance. But in every such instance a complete medical examination is indicated.

Cancer is not contagious and there is no definite proof that the disease is hereditary. The actual cause of the disease is not known. In the advanced stages it is incurable, but I am glad to say that when early diagnosis is made the proper treatment given, the disease may be completely cured. If every suspected cancer case were reported for proper treatment at the earliest possible moment, this practice would lead to an increase in the number of cases cured, with a marked decrease in the death rate.

Let us hope that medical science may soon discover the effectual cure for this disease as they have for so many other serious ailments. We owe much to the men who have given their lives in research that mankind might be benefited. These scientists are saddened by the failure of the public to realize what has been discovered to shorten and cure disease.

Answers to Health Queries
M. Q. Q.—What causes the nose to be full of mucus?
A.—That is probably due to catarrh. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

B. C. S. Q.—What should a girl aged 19, 5 feet 3 inches tall, weigh?
A.—She should weigh about 122 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

E. E. L. Q.—What do you advise for pimples?
A.—Diet and elimination are important in the correction of this disorder. Send self-addressed and stamped envelope for further particulars, repeating your question.

HOME MAKING HELPS

SUMMER IS HAPPIER WITH GARDEN HOUSE

We are learning to get something more out of our gardens than just a place in which to grow flowers or serve an occasional tea party. For one thing, we are learning that clever lighting fixtures and other contrivances are tending to make the garden a delightful summer dining room.

Many of us interested in the modernization of the home have been intrigued with a delightful and original garden house which recently has been on exhibition. We hope that before next summer comes along you will consider building yourself a garden house as an aid to more gracious and happy living.

With so much building and modernization going on around the house, it does seem a shame to neglect the garden, especially if it is a big one. We feel that a garden house would be even more fun than a lily pond or sundial, beautiful as these garden adjuncts are.

The garden house we describe is

Delay Hauptmann Perjury Trial

Flemington, N. J., reawakened to Hauptmann trial briskness for a brief moment, as Benjamin Heier (right, with attorney) was brought to court to answer charge of perjury, but Lloyd Fisher, who also is Hauptmann counsel, won continuance until June. Heier told Hauptmann jury he saw Isadore Fisch in cemetery night Lindbergh ransom was paid.

built beyond a flagstone terrace sign and appointments. It is and, as befitting this year of grace, primarily intended as a recreation center for the home, and so that it is entirely modern in spirit, de-particular house boasts a movable drum bar with a metallic green body banded in light blue. There is a game table and chairs to match, just inviting guests to sit down and play a rubber of bridge or a game of backgammon.

Even Has Bunks

A very clever idea is to be found at each end of the room. There are two bunks each swinging from the wall by silver ropes, and each large enough to accommodate an overnight male guest, if necessary. The silver rope motif is carried out in the wall decoration, where in a frieze it serves as a marginal accent to the yellow walls and coral-colored ceiling, adding splendor to the room.

An additional touch is the huge built-in aquarium, brilliantly lighted and well stocked, that takes up almost one wall. It is surely difficult to think of a more delightful decoration for any room.

Used All Year

Matching the decoration of the drum bar is a glass drum fixture suspended from the ceiling. To make this particular garden house even more useful, there is a small oil heater in a small side room of the garden house, so that it can be used all year around. Although most of us won't want such a luxurious garden house, we should find much delight in even the simplest little house built in the garden which will take our guests and ourselves away from the house once in a while.

TODAY Standard Oil announces a motor fuel of Tomorrow

At the familiar SOHIO sign, motorists are at this moment securing tankfuls of a new motor fuel which we know to be superior to any "regular" priced gasoline previously made by us.

We would be justified in calling this gasoline a "1936 model" for it sets a new standard for motor fuel.

A chemist, analyzing this new X-70, would find it unique among today's gasolines in a distillation range that provides greater usable energy.

A motorist testing his first tankful of the new X-70, will find this extra energy demonstrated by more miles-per-gallon and a consequent lowering of his customary driving costs. In giving you this longer mileage we have not sacrificed any of the other qualities which have made SOHIO X-70 the favorite gasoline of Ohio motorists. On the contrary, these qualities have been improved and you will secure swifter pick-up, higher cruising speed on the open road, easier hill climbing.

Technically Speaking—

The flashing performance of modern motor cars would not have been possible without the accompanying improvement in motor fuels over the past few years.

While these improvements in gasoline have made vast contributions to automobile performance, they have been accompanied, by and large, by sacrifice of gasoline mileage.

Gasoline, as contained in crude oil, has several distinct component parts or zones, each of which has distinct qualities which are necessary and valuable in varying proportions for the best operation of a motor. These component parts, however, are not naturally in proper proportion for most efficient use in an internal combustion engine. In the effort to increase in a motor fuel the proportions of the component parts representing anti-knock, volatility, and acceleration, sacrifice has generally been made of heavier molecules which represent mileage and hill climbing power.

By a new process of fractionation selection this company now withdraws from the gasoline an intermediate part which is re-cracked and made more volatile and then reinserted into the gasoline. This makes it possible also to reinsert into the gasoline a larger part of the heavier molecules representing mileage and power than could otherwise be included in a modern gasoline.

While this gasoline is brand new to you, it is nearly a year old to us for we have been making it, experimentally, for many months at one of the SOHIO refineries. This experimental gasoline has met the most practical and painstaking tests which amply warranted the installation of the new distillation equipment at all of the SOHIO refineries.

With no fear of the outcome, we invite you to confirm, in your own car, the improved performance and money-saving quality of new SOHIO X-70.

Each crisp collar or vest is the very latest designed with an eye to spring. The vest, top center, is a loose-hanging panel of mousseline with tiny crystal buttons. The first of the lower three shows a large flat collar and waist-deep tucked jabot of white crepe de chine with an insertion border of white net. The triangular open-neck collar, below center, is mousseline with lace edgings and insertions plus tiny lace rosettes at either corner. The bib at the right is mousseline with double ruffles trimmed with polka-dot motifs and a crisp flower.

Saving Money

PITTSBURGH, May 1.—In a roundabout way the Allegheny county jail has saved some money. Two big coffee urns—made and sold in Pittsburgh—have been delivered to the jail by way of the Panama canal.

It was explained the manufacturer sold two discontinued models at such a price the county could afford to transport them from the Pacific coast and still pay less than for new models sold here. (MKT)

Damon Runyan's "Hold 'Em Yale" Brings Romance, Comedy To State

"Hold 'Em Yale," with Patricia Ellis, Larry Crabbe, Andy Devine, George E. Stone and George E. Stone will be shown tonight and tomorrow at the State theater. Damon Runyan wrote the story which concerns a flighty heiress who has a penchant for men in uniform. Her father, played by George Barber, is continually buying off ushers, policemen and bus drivers to keep them from marrying into the family.

Gigolo Horns In

All goes well until a character bearing the typical Damon Runyan name, "George the Gigolo," hears about the girl. Sensing the opportunity to annex a fortune easily, he buys himself a uniform and enters the list.

The young lady is properly impressed but her father cuts her off.

without a penny. So George leaves her to the mercies of four cronies, all tough mugs from the shady side of Broadway. They get so fed up with the girl that, at her father's suggestion, they attempt to marry her off to a Yale football player, Larry Crabbe.

What happens when four tough mugs muscle in on football and use racket methods to win games is seen in the comedy climax which takes place in the Yale bowl.

Keaton Returns

Buster Keaton has returned to the screen and is making short comedies. His comedy, "Tars and Stripes," is an added attraction at the State with "Hold 'Em Yale."

Olympic Champs?
ALTHOUGH the next Olympic games are still more than a year away, the influence of this track and field classic is already being felt, and Uncle Sam's athletes are already pointing for the 1936 extravaganza.
America's prospects in the coming look brighter and brighter, and if recent performances are any guide, the United States should be a very big factor in the games, and by an even bigger margin than last time.
The sprints already seem to be in the bag for Uncle Sam, with those three dusky comets, the cinder path, Jesse Owens, Ishbel Pracek and Ralph Metcalfe, holding the center of the stage.
George Anderson, flashing mercury of the University of California, is touted by coast critics as the equal or superior of this trio of black flashes, and any one of these four sprinters has too much speed for Europe's best.
Owens, the Ohio State marvel, will go after at least two Olympic titles at Berlin, and should be an even money bet to succeed. Recently in the Drake relays, this ascending colored boy streaked down the century path in the superlative time of 9.5 seconds, equalling Meland Locke's relay record, and set a new American record for the running broad jump by clearing 26 feet 1 1/4 inches.
The brown Buckeye bullet came within five-eighths of an inch of equalling the world's broad jump mark, held by Nambu of Japan, and at his present rate of improvement, jumping Jesse should crack the Olympic record before the 1936 Olympics are held.
Another sensational performance which augurs well for the United States Olympic chances are Bill Graber's electrifying pole vault of 14 feet 5 1/2 inches, bettering his own world's record by more than an inch. The pole vault has always been dominated by American athletes, and Uncle Sam's future hegemony in this event seems assured.
With "Babe" Torrance heaving the iron bomb out of sight, with Glenn Cunningham threatening the four-minute mark in the mile, with Eddie Harkin remaining unrivaled in the hurdles, and Ben Eastman still the tops among the half-milers, it appears that only in the distance events will European athletes have the call once more.

Sarazen Sees Revolta Champ
PITTSBURGH, May 7.—Doughty Gene Sarazen, who modestly calls himself "A 100-to-1 shot" after losing the situation over, still sees Johnny Revolta of Michigan as the probable winner of the national golf open next month.
Gene sent a round on the Oakland course when the tourney will be held and opined that things will be much, much harder than in 1927 when Tommy Armour took the title.
He figures that a score of 296 will be enough to take the title, but you can bet 296 won't be broken.
As for Revolta, Gene points to his winter record in which he had an average of 71.27 for 46 rounds of competition. He was second only to Henry Picard, the big money winner from Hershey, Pa.
"I do not feel Picard will win despite his play in the winter tournaments," was Sarazen's comment.
The only remark Gene made about his own chances was that he was a 100-to-1 shot.

Tilley's Pigeon Is Race Winner
Ride from the loft of Jack Tilley won the 90 mile pigeon race from Mansfield Sunday, staged by the Salem Racing Pigeon club. Plummet from Conrad loft was second.

The results:
Tilley Echo, Salem 788.25
Conrad Plummet, Salem 782.62

Dark Horses Keep The Major League Teams In Constant Turmoil Indians And Giants Need To Be Watchful Of Weaker Opposition

Chicago White Sox Jump from Cellar to Top; Championship Tigers, Cardinals Will Grow Tougher

By ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK, May 7.—Not in many years have the two major league championships resembled old-fashioned "dog-fights" so much as they do this spring.
It is, of course, quite true that two of the prime favorites, the Cleveland Indians and New York Giants, have been doing very well, when it is considered that both clubs have patched up their ineffectual. Both have shown the pitching class expected of them and exhibited power. The Indians may be stronger when Bill Knickerbocker returns to action, and the Giants will be better off, defensively, with Hughey Critz back at second base.
They will need to be. Already the dark-horses in both leagues, led by the Chicago White Sox in the American and the Brooklyn Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds in the National, have upset several barrels of dope.
The White Sox, on top today, may be too good to last, but there is no fluke in their jump from the 1934 cellar to such dizzy heights.
The Sox lead the league in fielding as well as batting, with a 10-point margin over the Athletics and a 20-point lead over the clubbing Clevelanders.
Both championship clubs, Detroit's Tigers and the St. Louis Cardinals, have started slowly out they will be tougher to beat as the season develops.

Two Teams Lead Minor Leagues

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, May 7.—Two American association winning streaks were still alive today, but another had been stopped.
St. Paul, in second place two and one-half games behind Indianapolis, won its fifth straight game yesterday, 3 to 2, over Toledo. E. Garland Braxton, Milwaukee's ace southpaw, won his fourth straight victory, 7 to 1, over Louisville.
Kansas City, however, which had worked up a four-game string of victories, was tripped by Indianapolis, 7 to 4.
Five home runs helped Minneapolis to a 12 to 8 victory over the slipping Columbus Red Birds. Dutch Holland hit his eighth homer of the season. Johnny Gill connected for his sixth, and Leo Norris, Spencer Harris and Gaffie came up with one each. The Millers lost catcher Pinky Harrgrave, who suffered a fractured finger on his throwing hand in catching a foul tip, for a month or more.

Youngstown Plans Softball Clinic

J. M. Kelley, Memorial building manager, has been invited to attend a district softball rules clinic at the Central Y. M. C. A. in Youngstown Wednesday night. Local softball pitchers are also asked to attend, if possible.
At Redding, pitcher for the national championship Toledo Crimson Coaches, will give a demonstration of legal pitching deliveries.
Denny Schill, Struthers High coach and director of Youngstown recreational activities, and Al Fairfield, district softball commissioner, will be in charge of the meeting.

Tennis and Golf

COLUMBUS, May 7.—Two tennis matches and one golf meet are on the Buckeye Conference schedule this week. Saturday afternoon Cincinnati will play at Ohio and Miami will appear at Ohio Wesleyan for net matches, while Cincinnati and Wesleyan will clash at Delaware in a golf contest.

Breaks Record in Pole Vault

Bill Graber, above, former Southern California track star, set a new world record in the pole vault when he cleared the bar at 14 feet 5 1/2 inches at Santa Barbara, bettering his previous record of 14 feet 3 1/2 inches.

116 OHIOANS TO FIGHT MONDAY FOR GOLF SEAT

Link Luminaries Seek Places In National Golf Championship

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, May 7.—Ohio's links luminaries—116 of them—will battle it out next Monday on five different fronts for places in the national open golf championship flight to be staged June 6, 7 and 8 at the Oakmont course, Pittsburgh.
The Buckeye brigade will make its bid at Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, Jacksonville Beach, Fla., and at the Oakmont club.
The Camargo club in Cincinnati will be the battleground for 26 Ohioans and seven from out of the state to fight it out for five places in the title hunt. Cleveland's Acadia Country club will entertain 75 golfers, 73 from Ohio, eight will qualify.
One Buckeye will participate in the Country club of Detroit flight, two will play at the Ponte Vedra Country club at Jacksonville Beach while four will make their last stand over the Oakmont course, where the title will be decided. All the qualifying tourneys are set for Monday, May 13.
Nine of Last Season
Of Ohio's 14 entrants in last year's national open, nine are included in these five qualifying events.
Of last year's qualifiers, these will make their bids again: Stephen Zappe, Springfield; Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati; Frank Gelhot, Cincinnati; Johnny Florio, Columbus; Bob Kepler, Dayton; Alfred Sargent, Toledo; Bob Shave, Willoughby; Reggie Myles, Bedford, and Bob Servis, Dayton.
Phil Perkins of Cleveland, Al Espinosa of Akron, and Bill Burke of Cleveland, all among the first 30 in the 1934 open, are automatically qualified for this year's classic.
Ohio will present four champions in the qualifier, three holding Buckeye titles and another a national crown.
The national title-holder is Everett G. Livesay of Columbus, who has won the national southpaw honors the last two years. Maurice McCarthy of Cleveland, who took the state amateur crown a year ago with an outstanding 9 and 8 victory over Bobby Servis of Dayton, will compete at Cleveland. Servis will compete in the qualifier at Jacksonville Beach.
Lloyd Gullickson of Cleveland, who bested Frank Gelhot of Cincinnati, the state's intercollegiate titleholder, will take part in the Queen City test.

Finnish Runner Quits After Row

(By Associated Press)
HELSINKI, Finland, May 7.—Paavo Nurmi, Finland's world famous runner, quit the Finnish Athletic association today as a consequence of its decision to resume athletic relations with Sweden.
He surrendered as well his task of preparing Finnish runners and athletes for the next Olympics.
The president of the Finnish association and the entire board of directors joined Nurmi in withdrawing from the organization.
The Finnish boycott of Swedish athletics began in 1932 after Nurmi was ruled a professional by the International Amateur Athletic association through J. A. Edstrom, its Swedish president.
Finland countered by charging that Sweden on several occasions had attempted to persuade Nurmi to participate in matches in which cash prizes were offered. Nurmi incorporated the charges.
The Finnish association voted 40 to 38 to resume relations with Swedish association in the debate which preceded the vote while President Kekkonen pleaded for a definite understanding with Sweden before the boycott was abolished.

Southpaw Finally Comes Through For Joe Cronin's Team

Fritz Ostermueller, Left-Hander of Red Sox Southpaw Staff, Outpoints Hildebrand to Beat Indians

By HERBERT W. BARKER, Associated Press Sports Writer
Joe Cronin finally has found a southpaw who can travel the route. The news in that statement is that he should have to wait three weeks before one of his Boston left-handers pitched a complete game. On paper, at least, the Red Sox have the strongest port-side pitching contingent in the major leagues.
Fritz Ostermueller, a sophomore member of the southpaw staff which also includes Bob Grove, Rube Walberg and George Hockette, reached top form yesterday just in time to outpoint Oral Hildebrand in a tight pitching argument, beat the Cleveland Indians 2-1, and elevate the idle Chicago White Sox to the American League lead.
Taken out of the box in three previous starting assignments, Ostermueller limited the Tribe to six hits, fanned six and drove Mel Almada home with the winning run with a seventh inning single.
Fritz, 45th in American League pitching percentages last season, but ninth in the earned run ratings with an average of 3.48 runs per nine-inning game, had all his stuff against the Indians. A base on balls to Sammy Hale and Bruce Campbell's pop fly double gave Cleveland its lone run in the sixth, but Ostermueller was in complete control otherwise.
Their defeat sent the Indians into second place with nine victories and four defeats, the White Sox going to the top with 11 and 4.

RACING NOTES

BY ORLO ROBERTSON, Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK, May 7.—Although Omaha won the Kentucky Derby in convincing fashion and is the strong favorite to take the $25,000 Preakness at Pimlico Saturday, "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, 61-year-old trained of William Woodward's colt, is not yet willing to concede that the lanky chestnut is equal to his famous daddy, Gallant Fox.
"You know, you get a Gallant Fox only once in a life-time," said Fitzsimmons early this spring when Omaha was being prepped for his three-year-old campaign over the wind-swept aqueduct course.
More Races Yet
He stood by that statement today, but finally admitted he may be lucky and get another equal to the 1930 champion, which won $328,165.
"I'm reserving my final decision, however, until after Omaha has raced a few more times," he said.
"He has done all I have asked of him but he still has to win the Preakness, the Belmont stakes and a few more to be the horse that his daddy was."
"Right now I would rate Diavolo, which raced for Mrs. H. C. Phipps and Ogden Mills' Wheatley stable, as second to Gallant Fox, among the horses I have trained."
Fitzsimmons has been training horses for more than 40 years, ever since weight forced him to give up riding in 1893.
Some 60 horses are in his barns, the property of Woodward, the Wheatley stable, Ogden Phipps, H. C. Phipps and Howard Maxwell.
Two of his three sons, James, Jr., and Harvey, are on his large staff of assistants.

CHAPTER XX

"Did Merriam, also, have the opportunity to participate in the crime?" queried Montigny. "Was he known to have been upstairs—or away from the others at the party?"

"That's where we're up against it," growled McEniry. "Everybody was half-shot, lots of hula-baloos and music and Zulu drumming, the regular lights were not even on in the library-ballroom—they were using a spot and colored floodlights. Nobody seems to know exactly where anybody else was. Why, few of 'em knew Mrs. Elderbank was out of the room, even. Merriam admits he left the lights he was tending to go out and see if this dancer was ready. He says he saw Mrs. Elderbank going up to answer the phone about then, and he says a little later he was in the kitchen and butler's pantry checking up the liquor supply with the butler."

"Thus clearing," said Montigny, smiling faintly, "the butler?"

"Oh, yes, Cuples is all right. We're having him watched. But I'm not worrying about him."

Mr. Elderbank, seated at a corner of McEniry's desk, had been resting his head wearily in his hands, his eyes closed. He rose abruptly.

"I can't stand any more of this, Inspector," he said bitterly. "I'm going to leave the rest to you and Captain Montigny. I am going to my hotel."

"All right, Mr. Elderbank. I think you'd better. The thing is too close to you. I thought perhaps, though, that while you were here you'd like to see this Merriam chap."

Elderbank stiffened. He was a stern, commanding figure when he drew himself to full height.

"Yes, I should like to see the blackguard," he declared vehemently. "I shall not go until I have seen him."

McEniry with a quizzical smile on his lips spoke a message into the telephone summoning Merriam. Sergeant Darden was in the outer office and desired to speak to him, the Inspector was told.

"A new line on this pencil business," said Darden. "We have traced it."

"Already? Good! Shoot!"

"It's a newspaper man's pencil, extra-soft—copyreader's pencil, the kind they use at the Amalgamated Press offices. There was another just like it in Thurber's pocket when he was searched last night. He admits it is his pencil!"

"His pencil, eh?" muttered McEniry into the receiver. How does he account for it being on that roof?"

"Says he doesn't know—he might have dropped it when he was up there putting up his radio aerial, or it might have fallen out of his pocket last night when he was in the Elderbank roof garden. Then he remembered that his lawyer had told him not to talk, and he wouldn't say anything more."

"All right, Darden. Good work."

The Inspector hung up his receiver as Price Merriam entered. Price was debonairly dressed, as usual, handsome as a screen star, not a doubt lurking in his clear, frank eyes—too clear and frank to be perfectly true, one felt. His brown hair was faultlessly brushed. His hand, as he extended it to Mr. Elderbank, exhibited the glistening pink finger nails of a morning manicure.

Elderbank ignored the outstretched hand.

"Don't pretend any intimacy with me, sir," said the old man coldly. "I don't want to shake hands with you. I want an explanation of this ghastly outrage."

Merriam seemed astounded. "Why, what's the matter, Mr. Elderbank?" he exclaimed. "I'm frightfully done in with all that has happened, but surely—surely, sir, you don't blame me!"

"Blame you?" cried Elderbank. "Blame you! I'll send you to the electric chair, that's what I'll do, you miserable bounder!"

Merriam paled. He glanced apprehensively at Inspector McEniry and Montigny. His lip trembled. "Why, Mr. Elderbank, I did the very best that I could to protect her. I was opposed to certain features of last night's party and I told her so. Why, we scarcely knew half the people who were present—some peculiar so-called artist folk from next door for instance. But I didn't think that any of them—"

Elderbank interrupted in a voice that rose to a roar: "You were a party to this dastardly outrage, and don't you deny it! You set the brutal scoundrels on her—you told them how to go about it, how to trick her into answering her telephone—the police have the proof of it, and by heaven—"

The old man's anger choked him. "What—what proof?" stammered Merriam. "I haven't done anything wrong. I knew nothing about this terrible plot—you ought to realize that, Mr. Elderbank. You have no right to turn on me this way. I have served your interests faithfully."

"Faithfully? You lying dog! You unconscionable beast! You were entrusted with the protection of this poor woman. You had every reason to be grateful to her, and to me. You were paid twice for everything you did—once by my wife and once by me. But you were not satisfied with that—you thief, you murderer!"

Elderbank's puffy face had grown purple. Inspector McEniry gently urged him into a chair.

"All right, sir, try not to get excited, sir," cautioned the Inspector. "We're going to handle this chap for you."

"You haven't got a thing on me," babbled Merriam in sudden terror. "You can't pin this horrible crime on me. I didn't have a thing to do with it, I tell you—"

"Except the long cord leading to your window," put in the Inspector coolly; "you tied the bag on that, didn't you—the bag that contained Mrs. Elderbank's jewelry—after you had killed her?"

"Good heavens, Inspector, what are you saying? I—"

Merriam looked around helplessly. Sweat had popped out on his forehead, and he mopped it with a spotless cambric handkerchief. He caught the hostile glare of Elderbank's eyes and it seemed to give him resolution.

"Oh, all right," he said bitterly, his lips curling. "I seem to be the general goat for everything, don't I? All right, Inspector, I'll tell you this and it is gospel truth—I know nothing whatever about the cord somebody tied outside my window. It's a plant, a dirty frame-up. I never saw or heard about this 'Garvice' they're asking me about. I didn't know there was such a person in the house with me. They could have got into my rooms all right. They could have stolen my key—somebody did, as a matter of fact—or they could have sneaked in while the maid was cleaning, and hidden—"

"Yes, they could have got in," belittled Elderbank, "with your aid and consent."

Merriam faced the old man squarely. "Now, let me tell you something, you ungrateful old crook." Merriam pointed his finger at him. "I wanted to play fair with you, you hypocritical old heel, but you've chosen to slam the dirt at me, and by heaven, I'll tell what I know!"

Elderbank rose in renewed rage. "Get him out of here, get him out of here," he shouted, "before he provokes me to violence."

"Ah, cut the melodrama," sneered Merriam. "Nobody's afraid of you, you puffed-up bag of wind! Don't think you can bully me. I don't care whether you've got fifteen million dollars or fifteen cents. Play me in the fog and I'll come back at you. I know all about you, you damned old fraud, and I'm going to tell all I know."

"Stop him! Stop him!" stormed Elderbank. "I'll kill him if he keeps on with these insults!"

"Let him go on," growled Inspector McEniry, who had taken a new interest in Merriam in view of this show of spirit. "If he knows anything that's true it won't hurt to let it come out."

"I know something that's true, you're dead right I do," said Merriam triumphantly. "I know this many old scoundrel threatened his wife—threatened to kill her. Now make the most of that, if you're looking for suspects. Don't pick on somebody because a cheap crook has pulled a plant on him. He threatened her. Arrest him!"

"He is lying," shouted Elderbank. "It is not true, not a miserable word of it."

"It's true if your wife spoke the truth about it," said Merriam coolly. "It isn't hearsay, either, I've got it in black and white. She wrote me about it. You can put that letter in evidence, Inspector along with your fishing cord."

"Where is it?" demanded McEniry.

"It's in my box at the bank—I've saved it for just such a time as this."

"I defy you to produce it, you infernal scoundrel!" challenged Elderbank. "If you have any such letter it is a forgery."

"We'll let the authorities judge as to that. She wrote me from Montreal that you had threatened her life, because she wouldn't give you a divorce. Oh, I know all about your 'love nest' on Sherbrooke Street, you tricky old hypocrite. Don't stand there and make faces at me, you can't scare me. I know you've got a girl in Montreal. And your wife knew about it. You weren't fooling anybody. Did you want the jewels for her—for your sweet thing in Canada? Is that why you stole them—hired a gunman to kill your wife?"

"Stop him! Stop him!" shrieked Elderbank, ill-restrained by the commanding bulk of McEniry, who stood between him and the dapper young man who was taunting him.

"Turn against me, call me a cheap crook, will you?" Merriam went on. "I'll give you something to worry about. You had the jewels insured in your name, didn't you—eight hundred and fifty thousand dollars—didn't you? You'd get a cheap divorce and you'd get paid twice for the stones, wouldn't you—once by the insurance company, once by the police who book them in! Or did you intend giving them to this dame in Montreal—"

Agree to Extend NRA at White House Conference

Extension of the NRA beyond its expiration date of June 16 appeared assured following a conference of senate leaders with President Roosevelt at the White House. Donald Richberg, NRA chief, left; Senator Pat McCarran, center, Nevada, and Senator Gerald P. Nye, right, North Dakota, are shown leaving the White House following the conference.

"You're a dirty, low, unprincipled thief and black—"

"Oh, cut the theatricals. You can't bully me as you did this poor woman who was your wife. But you couldn't make her give you a divorce, for all your bullying, could you? You couldn't get the grounds, could you? That's why you hired me, really, wasn't it—you hoped there would be grounds, didn't you? You had us watched. But I didn't fall into the trap, you nasty old scheming knave."

"Nix on the personalities!" commanded McEniry. "You can tell what you've got to tell without this rough stuff. You don't have to insult this old gentleman." "He insulted me," said Merriam coldly. "He accused me of breaching a trust of double-dealing, of theft and murder. I'm a square-shooter, Inspector, whatever else you may say of me. I never picked a defenseless woman to double-cross."

"Why wouldn't she give him a divorce?" interrogated McEniry bluntly.

"Because it wasn't up to her, that's why. She had done nothing to be divorced for. She had kept her end of the contract."

"By running around to Deauville, New York, Palm Beach—"

"He forced her into it. He made life unbearable for her. She told me the whole truth. She said I was the only real friend she had."

"And you hoped to marry her yourself some day, eh?"

Merriam shrugged. "It is a matter of no consequence what I 'hoped.' At any rate I played square with her, and I'm just as anxious to find the fiends who killed her, Inspector, as you are."

Elderbank had subsided into a broken heap. He sat humped up in his chair, saying nothing.
